NB San Diego: Shore-based top galley

by Ed Wright
WASHINGTON - Naval Base San Diego and Joint Expeditionary Base Little Creek-Fort Story, representing Navy Installations Command galley, were announced by the secretary of the Navy as the winners of the 2017 Captain Edward F. Ney Memorial Food Service Award for outstanding food service Feb. 14.

The Ney award is awarded annually to the highest-performing food service operations throughout the Navy.

"The Ney Award is the highest honor a galley can receive; it recognizes outstanding customer service, sanitation, and safety observances, fiscal accountability, and food that tastes great," said Karin George, NIC Ashore galley program manager. "Winning the Ney Award means that the efforts of the entire galley staff were recognized by senior leadership. No one person wins the Ney for the operation. It takes the entire galley team to ensure that every day the service is consistently outstanding."

Naval Base San Diego was the winner in the Large General Mess category, while Joint Expeditionary Base Little Creek-Fort Story was the Small General Mess winner.

The Ney awardees must earn a five-star rating from a Navy evaluation team to be considered for the award.

The annual awards encourage excellence in Navy Food Service programs with the objective of improving the quality of life for Navy personnel.

Saluting a century of service

Flight operations at NAS North Island

by MC1 Travis Alston

The mission of the Navy is to maintain, train and equip combat-ready Naval forces capable of winning wars, deterring aggression and maintaining freedom of the seas. The Navy is unique in that it fulfills a broad role that encompasses everything from combat to peacekeeping to humanitarian assistance. A primary way the Navy does this is by providing firepower and support from the air.

In February 1948 the world's fastest carrier-based jet aircraft, the 600-mile-per hour North American FJ-1 Fury, arrived at North Island as a unit of VF-51. Courtesy photo

With this demanding task in mind, it is vital that aviators are trained on the most technologically advanced aircraft in the world, and on ranges and areas that allow them to "train like you fight." One area that requires dedicated and consistent training is preparing to land on a ship. Naval Air Station North Island and Naval Outlying Landing Field Imperial Beach support this training at Navy airfields.

Flight paths and noise caused by military aircraft are an ongoing issue for residents near military installations. Naval Base Coronado (NBC) leadership wants to assure residents that their complaints and concerns are a top priority.

NBC leadership considers the relationship with the surrounding community crucial and has a variety of strategies for noise management to include the avoidance of flight routes and altitude restrictions in noise-sensitive areas and by placing limits on the types of flight operations, when possible.

"We are committed to the safety and well-being of our neighbors and understand that our operations create noise," said Capt. Scott T. Mulvehill, NBC commanding officer. "However, it is our responsibility to facilitate the training of the Navy's pilots to meet our nation's overarching mission."

Recently, base leadership established a Community Concerns Hotline as well as a section on the NBC web page to assist residents in getting their voices heard.

Mulvehill said it is important residents understand that there are several contributing factors that dictate air operations on base.

"Ultimately the Federal Aviation Administration is responsible for management and control of the National Airspace System," said Mulvehill. "Operations at San Diego International Airport influence all aircraft operations throughout San Diego County. Naval Air Station North Island's close proximity to San Diego International results in the FAA directing some of our operations. Simply put, there are many airfields in a small area, therefore we have to work with each other to ensure all missions and services are provided."

In 2016 NASNI conducted a total of 83,181 airfield operations, which included takeoffs and landings from the runways, or one of the multiple helicopter pads located on the airfield. Of those operations, approximately 8,000 instrument approaches occurred to runway 29. This particular flight path brings aircraft along the beach. These approaches are a training requirement for both the pilots and the controllers. This practice allows them to be ready for bad weather, at sea and when far from home.

"We limit our overall operations to the greatest extent practical by limiting transient aircraft to mission essential operations," said Mulvehill. "The base is tasked with training missions for both pilots

Off-road, expeditionary all-terrain vehicles

ATVs on their way to infantry Marines

by Mathuel Browne

MARINE CORPS BASE QUANTICO, Va. - Infantry Marines will soon receive ultralight off-road vehicles that will improve mission readiness by providing rapid logistics support in the field.

Program Executive Officer Land Systems, the Corps' acquisition arm for major land programs, is expected to deliver 144 Utility Task Vehicles to the regiment-level starting later this month - a mere six months from contract award. The rugged all-terrain vehicle can carry up to four Marines or be converted to haul 1,500 pounds of supplies. With minimal armor, the UTV can quickly haul extra ammunition and provisions, or injured Marines, while preserving energy and stealth.

"The Marine's pack is getting heavier, and they are carrying more gear than ever down range," said Jessica Turner, team lead for Internally Transportable Vehicles/Utility Task Vehicles at PEO LS. "Infantry Marines were looking for a capability that would lessen the load while increasing the area of operation, and the UTV is that solution."

The UTV is a new capability for the fleet. Measuring roughly 12 feet long, the commercially acquired diesel vehicle is modular, with back seats that convert into a small cargo bed. Thanks to its small size, the UTV fits inside MV-22 Ospreys and CH-53E helicopters for easy transport to remote locations and greater tactical support.

PEO LS joined a Marine Corps Special Operations Command contract to deliver the capability to Marines in such a short amount of time.

"We have taken an off-the-shelf capability and leveraged it with other commands to maximize the effort," said Eugene Morin, product manager for Legacy Light Tactical Vehicles at PEO LS. "The continued challenge for the Marine Corps is finding commercial-off-the-shelf items that satisfy the needs of Marines. Through partnerships like this, we can find the solutions we need."

In exchange, MARSOC partnered with the Marine Corps Warfighting Laboratory to run field user evaluations on the UTV to ensure it met the needs of the warfighter.

"One key takeaway from the MCWL testing was user feedback from Infantry Marines," said Mark Godfrey, vehicle capabilities integration officer at Marine Corps Combat Development and Integration. "MCWL did demonstrations such as casualty evacuation and maximum payload, and were able to tell us Marines' thoughts on the value of the vehicle."

The UTV program also satisfies the infantry's requirement to maneuver more rapidly and deeply throughout the battlespace.

Much like larger tactical vehicles, Marines authorized to drive the UTV will be required to complete operator training as well as additional off-road vehicle safety procedures.

"One reason for the driving course is the UTV is an off-road vehicle," Turner said. "The UTV's suspension, handling and the way it distributes power is a lot different than a regular vehicle."

Eighteen vehicles will be delivered to specific infantry regiments, with the first shipment going to I and II Marine Expeditionary Force in February, and III MEF in March and April. The Marine Corps will continue to seek ways to leverage partnerships and speed acquisition for Marines.

"The UTV is a perfect example of how we can do acquisition faster and more efficiently," said Godfrey. "It may be a model for obtaining items from industry quicker in the future."

U.S. condemns North Korean ballistic missile launch

by Terri Moon Cronk

WASHINGTON - The United States strongly condemns North Korea's weekend ballistic missile launch and its other recent attempts and will take all necessary measures to deter and defeat threats to U.S. and ally territories and citizens, Pentagon spokesman Capt. Jeff Davis told reporters Monday.

Davis said that on Feb. 11, U.S. Strategic Command detected and tracked what was assessed as a North Korean missile launch of a probable intermediate-range ballistic missile.

"[The launch] occurred near the North Korean northwestern city of Kusong and it flew roughly due east out into the Sea of Japan about 500 kilometers [more than 310 miles]," Davis said, adding that the missile landed in international waters.

"The North American Aerospace Defense Command determined the missile launch did not pose a threat to North America," he said. "We also worked very quickly with our Japanese and South Korean allies to make sure it did not pose a threat to them either."

The captain said the United States maintains capabilities to respond quickly and intercept missiles from North Korea if they do pose a threat to the nation or its allies.

"There are multiple U.N. Se-

VP-45 'Pelicans' respond to Clyde Challenger search and rescue efforts

by Lt. Caroline Sabatt,

ATLANTIC OCEAN - Her Majesty's coastguard received an emergency beacon from Clyde Challenger, a 60-foot sailboat transiting from the Azores back to the UK Feb. 10.

The sailboat took on a rogue wave which snapped its mast, leaving it stranded in severe sea state and weather conditions.

A nearby ship, UK tanker CPO Ferdinand, responded to the distress signal and shielded and monitored the vessel until further relief could arrive.

curity Council resolutions that explicitly prohibit North Korea's launches using ballistic missile technology," Davis said.

"North Korea's unlawful weapons programs represent a clear, grave threat to our national security," he added. "North Korea openly states that its ballistic missiles are intended to deliver nuclear weapons to strike cities

Sailors from Patrol Squadron 45 responded to the call, and dispatched two crews and two Poseidon aircraft to provide aerial coverage while waiting for Royal Navy destroyer HMS Dragon (D35) to arrive on station.

"P-8 presence on station provided continuous, rescue scene condition updates to Her Majesty's coastguard and facilitated a communications relay between the Clyde Challenger crew and the HMS Dragon," said Lt. Rodrigo Cunha, VP-45 P-8A tactical coordinator.

in the United States, the Republic of Korea and Japan. Our commitment to the defense of our allies, especially the Republic of Korea and Japan in the face of these threats is ironclad."

Davis said based on a public video North Korea reportedly released, the rocket's bright, white emissions is indicative of North Korea's use of solid fuel in the launch.

The missile also is very similar to what the North Koreans have launched from their submarines in the past, the spokesman said, adding that the Feb. 11 launch appears to be a land-based variation of past launches.

"[Such launches from North Korea are] all serious," Davis said. "This is a program they are moving forward on to try to develop this capability, and they've been doing it in defiance of multiple resolutions and actions to try to get them to stop. They are very open and transparent about their desire to build this capability, and we are open about our ability to defeat it."

The U.S. Missile Defense Agency (MDA), the Japan Ministry of Defense (MoD), and Navy Sailors aboard USS John Paul Jones (DDG 53) conducted a flight test Feb. 3, resulting in the first intercept of a ballistic missile target using the Standard Missile-3 (SM-3) Block IIA off the west coast of Hawaii. Mattis: U.S. remains committed to NATO as alliance transforms

by Cheryl Pellerin

WASHINGTON - The United States remains committed to NATO, history's most successful military alliance, as it transforms to match the changing character of war, Defense Secretary Jim Mattis told reporters traveling with him to this week's NATO defense ministers conference in Brussels.

In addition to attending the conference and meeting with counterparts from other NATO member nations, Mattis also will host a meeting of ministers from the coalition to counter the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria during his second international trip as defense secretary.

"Our commitment remains to NATO, [which is] ... in the midst of transformation. Why? You've watched as the character of war over this last dozen years has changed itself, and as the character of war changes, so must the character of the militaries that address them," Mattis said.

To underscore the alliance's commitment to change, the secretary noted that the only NATO command with a headquarters in the United States is Allied Command Transformation.

"The whole point of that command is to transform NATO, so ... we go to Brussels where we all get together, we talk about that transformation, [and] we guide it. NATO has transformed over these last 20 years, and it must continue to transform," Mattis said.

As secretary, he added, his approach to NATO is "full-speed ahead and listen, learn, help and lead."

Listening is first, he said. "Learn what other people face, help them wherever I can, because they've been allies. They stood by us after New York was attacked and so many decades before that. And many of them have lost boys, lost women in fighting the enemy that attacked America. And then lead, ... [because] America has a leadership role."

On Feb. 17, Mattis will attend the Munich Security Conference in Germany, where he will hold a series of meetings with key international counterparts.

The trip will underscore the U.S. commitment to the NATO alliance and to defeating ISIS, according to a Feb. 10 DoD news release announcing the secretary's trip.

NATO secretary general previews alliance defense ministerial

by Jim Garamone

WASHINGTON - NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg previewed the meeting of defense ministers that started Feb. 15, saying the leaders will sharpen the alliance's response to a more challenging security environment.

Stoltenberg told reporters at NATO headquarters in Belgium that the security challenges are real and complicated, but the alliance is responding and he noted an increase in defense spending by NATO allies.

Defense Secretary Jim Mattis is also at the meeting in Brussels.

"NATO is founded on the bond between North America and Europe, and in good times and bad, that bond has been unbreakable," Stoltenberg said. "We stand together. We defend each other. And that is good both for Europe, and for North America. I'm confident that defense ministers at our meeting tomorrow and the day after tomorrow once again are going to reconfirm the enduring importance of the transatlantic bond."

The alliance is putting in place the infrastructure to implement the decisions made at last year's NATO Summit in Warsaw. This includes deploying four multinational battle groups to Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania and Poland.

"We are also stepping up our ability to anticipate and respond to crises in the south in order to project stability in our neighborhood," Stoltenberg said.

NATO nations have pledged to invest 2 percent of gross domestic product in defense capabilities. The United States, Britain, Poland, Estonia and Greece are the only countries at or above this monetary goal now, defense officials have said, but other countries have reversed the downward trend and have increased defense expenditures.

"NATO's continuous adaptation requires responsibilities to be shared fairly among allies," Stoltenberg said. "Fair burden-sharing and increased defense spending underpins the transatlantic Alliance."

The alliance nations have responded to the threats from Russia to the east and the transnational threats of terrorism emanating from the Middle East. "After many years with steep cuts in defense spending, we have turned a corner," the secretary general said. "Today, I can present to you new, updated figures for 2016. Defense spending in real terms has increased by 3.8 percent among European allies and Canada."

The jump is "significantly higher than what we had originally foreseen" and is indicative of the seriousness of the situation. "It amounts to roughly 10 billion dollars more for our defense," he said.

Lt. Lindianna Steffan, mission commander, and her P-8 crew arrived on station and established a 30-minute communications window with Clyde Challenger, maintaining updates on the crew's status and overall health of the vessel.

"It was a privilege to be the communications relay and provide the crew with any updates to the status of their rescue," said Lt. Caroline Sabatt, VP-45 P-8A tactical coordinator. "We were thrilled to be able to inform them when HMS Dragon was inbound and provide their instructions for rescue. You could hear the relief in their voices knowing that help was on the way and the rescue would commence soon."

Dragon was conducting routine operations when the ship was diverted to assist in the rescue operations. The second P-8A crew, led by Lt. Cmdr. Michael Winters remained on station and assisted vectoring Dragon to intercept Clyde Challenger.

The crew was able to maintain eyes on Clyde Challenger and witnessed four of the crew members' safe transfer from the sailboat to Dragon. All 14 personnel on Clyde Challenger were safely rescued.

"Supporting this mission highlights the P-8A's ability to respond quickly to a crisis situation, in this case 1,500 nautical miles from home base," said Capt. Bill Ellis, commander, Task Force 67. "While on scene, our crews were able to monitor and provide updates of the Clyde Challenger through the night, and help coordinate the arrival and rescue efforts of HMS Dragon. For the crew of the Clyde Challenger and their worried family members at home, it's reassuring to know that someone is watching over them while help is on the way. I'm very proud of the VP-45 'Pelicans' for their rapid response and role in this rescue at sea."

VP-45 is in the 6th Fleet area of operation in support of U.S. national security interests in Europe and Africa.

Navy christens LCS USS Tulsa

WASHINGTON - The Navy christened its newest Independence-variant littoral combat ship, USS Tulsa (LCS 16), Feb. 11 in Mobile, Ala.

Tulsa, designated LCS 16, honors the city of Tulsa, Okla.

Adm. William F. Moran, vice chief of naval operations, delivered the ceremony's principal address. Kathy Taylor, former mayor of Tulsa, is the ship's sponsor.

"The christening of the future USS Tulsa serves as a tribute to the extraordinary work done by our nation's shipbuilders and brings this great ship one step closer to joining our fleet," said the Honorable Sean Stackley, acting secretary of the Navy. "Our nation can be proud of this crew as they ready the ship to represent the city of Tulsa and the United States, around the world for years to come."

The future USS Tulsa is the second U.S. Navy ship to be named in honor of the city of Tulsa. The first USS Tulsa was an Asheville-class gunboat designated as PG-22 that served from 1923 to 1944 before being renamed Tacloban. She earned two battle stars for World War II service. A cruiser to be named USS Tulsa was also authorized for construction during World War II, but the contract was canceled before it was built.

Jansen receives NJP at Admiral's Mast

WASHINGTON - Rear Adm. Adrian Jansen received non-judicial punishment (NJP) at Admiral's Mast held Feb. 10 by Commander, United States Fleet Forces, Adm. Phil Davidson. A Defense Criminal Investigative Service investigation revealed violations of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) associated with Jansen's involvement with Glenn Defense Marine Asia (GDMA).

The investigation showed that Jansen had an inappropriately familiar relationship with Leonard Francis, Chief Executive Officer and President of Glenn Defense Marine Asia, while serving as the Naval Attache, Jakarta, Indonesia from 2010 to 2013. He attended multiple private dinners paid for by Leonard Francis over the course of two years, and accepted gifts of wine. The gifts of dinners and wine totaled more than $5,000, and exceeds amounts permitted by law and authorized under Department of Navy regulations. In addition, Jansen had a duty to report his contact with Leonard Francis, as well as the acceptance of the gifts, and he failed to do so.

During NJP, Davidson found Jansen guilty of violating article 92 of the UCMJ. Jansen received a punitive letter of reprimand and forfeiture of $3,750 pay per month for two months.

In conjunction with Admiral's Mast, Jansen has submitted a voluntary request for retirement that will be reviewed in accordance with existing processes.

CTF 76 staff integrates with CTFs, Marines during FST-J preps

OKINAWA, Japan - The staff of Commander, Task Force 76/Expeditionary Strike Group 7 participated in a one-week planning exercise and warfare academics recently in preparation for Fleet Synthetic Training-Joint Exercise (FST-J) to be held later this spring.

The expeditionary strike group staff participates in FST-J annually to ensure readiness to command over forces in a wide spectrum of mission sets.

Facilitated by Tactical Training Group Pacific (TTGP), the planning exercise included representatives from 3d Marine Expeditionary Brigade (MEB), Amphibious Squadron (PHIBRON) 11, CTF 72, CTF 70, CTF 74, and USS Chancellorsville (CG 62). Staff members and counterparts worked together in an effort to increase integration in achieving a common mission objective and leveraging each staff's functional capabilities.

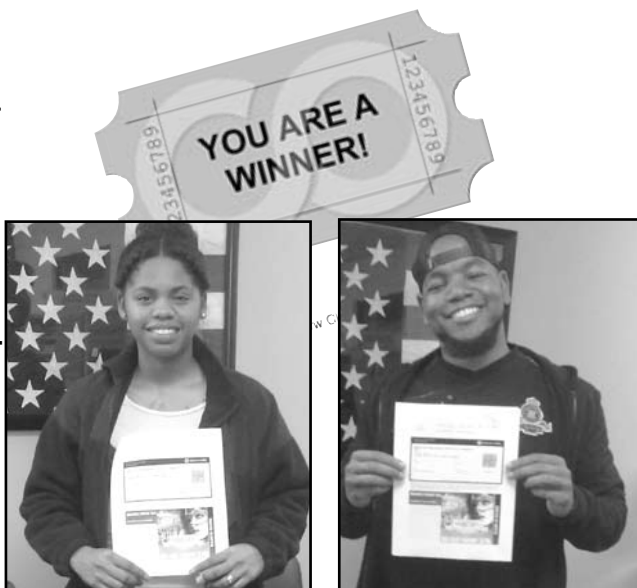

"This training is more insight into what we do as CTF. This helps our staff and planners become better-rounded in their support roles and it gives them an opportunity to gain further professional development," said Lt. Cmdr. Patrick Griffin, CTF 76 operational support officer and lead planner for FST-J. "It's critical that we execute this certification as an integrated team, in order for us to further the 7th Fleet mission."

Posthumous advancement for Navy SEAL

WASHINGTON - The Navy announced recently that a SEAL killed in action two weeks ago will be posthumously advanced to senior chief petty officer.

Chief Special Warfare Operator William "Ryan" Owens, 36, of Peoria, Illinois, died Jan. 29, 2017, in the Arabian Peninsula of Yemen, of wounds sustained in a raid against al-Qaida.

The Navy approved an exception to policy request for Owens' posthumous advancement, effective the day of his death.

Issa votes to improve veterans' services, employment opportunities

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Congressman Darrell Issa (R-Calif.) released the following statement after the U.S. House of Representatives voted to pass a series of bills that help veterans.

The legislation passed Feb. 13 includes the WINGMAN Act, one of the first pieces of legislation co-sponsored by Congressman Issa in the new Congress and introduced as part of his 2017 District Priorities.

"Veterans have fought and sacrificed much in their service to our nation. I'm pleased to support bipartisan legislation to speed up our ability to get them the benefits they've earned.

As the representative for the 42,000 Marines and their families at Camp Pendleton, one of the biggest issues we help constituents with every year is casework for problems with benefits or service issues at the VA. Yet, too often, bureaucratic red tape has created delays, taking weeks or months for caseworkers to receive the files they've requested from the VA. Streamlining this process through the WINGMAN Act will ensure that veterans won't have to wait and can quickly get the help and benefits they've earned.

We also must ensure veterans have ample opportunities for employment when they return from their service. The bills we've passed today will help make veterans a priority in the hiring process and give recognition to the companies who've put our heroes first. I applaud these efforts to improve veterans' services and strengthen job opportunities for those who've served."

The bills passed include:

H.R. 512 - The WINGMAN Act

The WINGMAN Act, co-sponsored by Congressman Darrell Issa, enables Congressional offices to provide better service to veterans with benefits claims and constituent services. It speeds up casework process by allowing authorized Congressional staff the ability to directly access VA records on behalf of constituents, instead of having to go through a middle-man at the agency.

H.R. 244 - HIRE Vets Act

The HIRE Vets Act establishes a recognition program to reward companies that hire veterans. Companies that hire, recruit and retain a certain proportion of veterans would become eligible for Gold or Platinum HIRE medallions to recognize - and incentivize - companies that support employment opportunities for veterans.

H.R. 974 - BRAVE Act

The BRAVE Act authorizes the Department of Veterans Affairs to give preferences in contracting to companies based on the percentage of full-time employees who are veterans.

FRA honors Senator Gillibrand

For the past 22 years, Fleet Reserve Association has presented its highest award to the member of Congress who goes above and beyond to advance FRA's legislative agenda.

FRA National President Donald Larson and National Executive Director Thomas Snee, presented the association's Pinnacle Award to Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand (N.Y.), to honor her outstanding leadership in preserving and enhancing the quality of life for military personnel, retirees, veterans and their families. Delegates at the October 2016 National Convention in Jacksonville, Florida unanimously voted to give this award to Senator Gillibrand.

The junior senator from New York has served in the Senate since 2009 and was appointed chairwoman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Personnel Subcommittee in 2013. She served as ranking member of the subcommittee since 2015. In the 114th session of Congress (2015-2016) she sponsored the "Blue Water Navy Vietnam Veterans Act." This FRA-supported bill would clarify that service members serving off the coast of the Republic of Vietnam during the Vietnam conflict have a presumption for filing disability claims with the VA.

Navy College Program app available for mobile devices

by Ed Barker, Naval Education and Training Professional Development Center Public Affairs

A new application for mobile devices which allows Sailors on-the-go access to many features of the Navy College Program (NCP) is available as of Feb. 8.

“The Navy College Program app offers Sailors mobile access to voluntary education planning tools, a counseling scheduler, and applications previously available only through the Navy College Offices or the Virtual Education Center,” said Lt. Cmdr. Nick Turner, the Naval Education and Training Professional Development Center’s Voluntary Education Program deputy director. “This app allows the completion of required training, processing of Tuition Assistance (TA) requests, and helps Sailors obtain counseling without being tied to a computer.”

The Navy College Program app is divided into several sections for ease of navigation:

- * Tuition Assistance - Links users to the My Education Web-TA portal so they can submit a TA application and view the status of existing TA applications.

- * Training - Allows users to complete required training, including the TA Course and the DoD Higher Education Preparation Course.

- * Videos - Provides video tutorials on the NCP, including TA and command information.

- * Resources - Provides in-app and online information on the Navy College Program and continuing education resources.

- * Schedule Counseling - Links users to the Appointment Scheduler, enabling Sailors to schedule an appointment for education counseling.

- * Virtual Education Center (VEC) - Provides contact access for counseling and assistance from the VEC.

- * Joint Services Transcript (JST) - Links users to the JST login page, allowing them to request their official JST.

- * In addition, the app includes an Emergency resources section and a Favorites section, which allows users to bookmark and easily access parts of the app they find personally important.

Turner added the NCP app is targeted primarily at active-duty members and will be a key tool for educational service officers and career counselors. The app’s tools are relevant to all Navy applicants, current Sailors, transitioning Sailors, and veterans. The app features public content only; no authentication or authorization required.

The NCP app is a bring-your-own-device (BYOD) tool designed to work on personal devices outside of the Navy Marine Corps Internet (NMCI) domain. Users can download the app from the iTunes and Google Play online stores at no cost. To find the free Navy College Program app, search “Navy College” or “NCP” in app stores or in your Web browser. Sailors can also find this app and many others through the Navy App Locker, <http://www.applocker.navy.mil>.

Navy announces Assignment Incentive Pay for some Sailors heading to NAS Lemoore

The Navy announced Thursday that some Sailors who are considering orders to sea-duty squadrons at Naval Air Station (NAS) Lemoore may be authorized Assignment Incentive Pay (AIP).

AIP is a temporary compensation tool used to incentivize voluntary assignment to billets determined to be historically difficult to fill.

“We recognize Lemoore is a hardship duty station for many Sailors,” said Rear Adm. John Nowell Jr., Director, Military Personnel Plans and Policy. “This is why we’re working hard to compensate Sailors who choose to serve there and go to sea.”

Those Senior Chief and Chief Petty Officers who are issued orders on or after Jan. 31, 2017, for Aviation Machinist Mate (AD),

Warrior transition program expands

by MCC James C. Brown

The Navy recently announced all individual augmentees (IAs) serving in U.S. Central Command (CENTCOM) or U.S. Africa Command (AFRICOM) areas of responsibility will attend Warrior Transition Program (WTP) in Sembach, Germany.

Additionally, all IAs will now attend some form of WTP, either in Germany or Norfolk.

Nestled in the Rhineland-Palatinate state of Germany lies the small Army base of Sembach. A tenant command, Expeditionary Combat Readiness Center (ECRC) Sembach Det., hosts a 3-5 day Warrior Transition Program-Third Location Decompression (WTP-TLD) program which focuses on redeploying Sailors’ transitional process amid farmland and rolling hills.

Capt. Joseph Rehak, ECRC commanding officer noted, “Germany provides an ideal location for our Sailors to reflect and rejuvenate after deployments down range in support of continuing operations. I am happy to say that we are now able to provide a much needed break to Sailors redeploying from the CENTCOM and AFRICOM theaters of operations.”

Senior Chief Culinary Specialist John Conniff, a redeployer from Isa Air Base, said of his experience at Sembach following deployment, “It’s been very relaxing. It’s nice to have the decompression downtime before returning to the states.”

The aim of WTP-TLD is time for the Sailor who is not on the battlefield or on the homefront. The process is designed to assist in an IA’s reintegration into life out of the theater of operations, with their families, friends, and careers. The program consists of instructional time, meeting with mental health and religious program professionals, liberty visits to towns such as Trier and Heidelberg, and individual downtime.

Rehak said, “The Warrior Transition Program provides Sailors time to reflect, learn skills, and meet partner organizations that will support in the transition from deployment to home life.”

Lt. j.g. Johnny Fugit, a redeployer from afloat forward staging base-interim USS Ponce (AFSB(I) 15), said, “I found it (WTP) really beneficial. Having a few days to catch my breath and reset has been important and enjoyable.”

The addition of AFRICOM redeployers, as well as seeing those from more CENTCOM sites than before, may lead to the staff at Sembach seeing a noticeable impact on operations.

Cmdr. Patrick Doyle, ECRC Sembach Det. officer in charge said, “The staff here is really dedicated to this mission and making sure that every returning Sailor has the best experience possible, even as we expect to double the number of people passing through WTP. For us, it’s a wonderful chance to have a positive impact on fellow Sailors.”

Following their time at WTP in Sembach, Reserve IAs will report to ECRC to complete the demobilization process before returning to their Navy Operational Support Center (NOSC). Active-duty IAs will return to their parent commands.

The Warrior Transition Program facilitates IA Sailors’ reintegration process following a Global Force Management (GFM) directed deployment by providing Combat and Operational Stress Control Continuum (COSC) workshops, collecting gear and weapons, and coordinating onward movement.

ECRC provides processing, equipping, training, certification, and proactive family support to active duty for special work (ADSW) Sailors, individual augmentees, and provisional units throughout all deployment phases in support of combatant command (COCOM) requirements, contingency operations, or national crises.

Everyone knows Murphy's Law — "Anything that can go wrong, will go wrong" — but few know that buried in the fine print of this famous decree, there is a Military Spouse Clause that that reads, "And when it does go wrong, it will happen during deployment."

Most military spouses have endured car breakdowns, hot water heater leaks and computer "blue screens of death" when our active duty spouses were on travel or deployments. Those home front mishaps are annoying, but what about when our kids are injured or sick? Is the emotional strain of handling a major parenting crisis too much for one military spouse to handle?

About fourteen years ago, my husband Francis was away on temporary military duty. I was at home with our three children in the suburbs of Virginia Beach. Hayden, Anna and Lilly were playing on our backyard play set with two other neighborhood kids. I did yard work nearby, then took Lilly into the kitchen to get something out for dinner.

"Mrs. Molinari!" the bushy-haired neighbor boy and his little

"What's the mat..." I stopped cold.

Anna's tiny forearm was mark-sister startled me out of the pantry. "Something's wrong with Anna's arm!"

I ran outside expecting to hear some cockamamie story how Anna scraped an elbow going edly bent at an unnatural angle. Her big brown eyes were wild, but she whispered to me, eerily calm, through gritted five-year-old jack-o-lantern teeth.

"I fell." I could see that survival instinct had taken over my fun-loving daredevil daughter.

I scooped Anna up, and as she held her deformed arm tightly to her chest, I put her in our minivan along with the other four children. I called the bushy-haired kids' parents, and asked if I could drop Hayden and Lilly off with their children while I took Anna to the emergency room.

They hesitated, still bitter about an incident the week prior, when Anna tipped over a bottle of hot pink nail polish on their white carpeting. But I knew they couldn't say no. They owed me for watching their kids all afternoon, and besides, I had no other options.

At the emergency room, I called Francis, but got his voicemail.

"Honey, Anna broke her forearm, both bones. I'm at the hospital. The doctor says he has to move the bones back into place... They'll give Anna morphine, but she might be awake. She is... we are... so scared. Call me."

I made the second call an hour later.

"Francis, are you there? The nurse gave Anna morphine so that she wouldn't feel the pain, but she just got agitated. They said she is one of a few people who react adversely to morphine. They have

Teach your children the importance of good dental habits

DEAR MAYO CLINIC: Is it true that some children are more susceptible to getting cavities than others? My 11-year-old has never had a cavity, but my 6-year-old already has needed four fillings. What's the best way to prevent cavities in kids? At what age should they start flossing?

ANSWER: Some people may be more prone to tooth decay than others, even within the same family. To give your children the best protection against cavities, teach them the importance of dental health by showing them how to care for their teeth. That includes daily flossing from a very young age. It's important for parents to have good oral hygiene, too. Make sure you and your children see a dentist regularly.

Tooth decay happens when areas in the hard surface of your teeth become damaged and develop holes, or cavities. Left untreated, the holes get bigger and can eventually lead to pain, infection and tooth loss. A combination of factors can trigger tooth decay, including bacteria in the mouth, teeth not being cleaned well, and eating or drinking lots of sugary foods and beverages.

If parents or other caregivers don't have good dental habits, they may have large amounts of bacteria in their mouths. Those bacteria can be transferred to young children, increasing the risk of decay. Special attention should be taken to avoid sharing toothbrushes, drinking glasses and other items that might transmit bacteria.

Brushing teeth at least twice a day - and ideally after every meal - is still one of the best ways to prevent tooth decay. Using a mechanical toothbrush with a rotating head is a good choice. They do a much better job of cleaning teeth than manual toothbrushes. Some include a two-minute timer, so it stays on for the amount of time dentists recommend teeth be brushed. That makes it easier for kids to get a thorough cleaning each time they brush.

Make sure the toothpaste your family uses contains fluoride. Research has shown that fluoride is effective in reducing cavities. Many cities now add fluoride to drinking water and that helps prevent tooth decay, too. If your child has fluoridated water, give your children tap water to drink rather than bottled water to get the benefits of the fluoride. Many dentists give children fluoride treatments during their dental visits, as well. For people who seem particularly susceptible to cavities, a dentist also may recommend a daily fluoride rinse.

Ask your dentist about applying dental sealants to your children's teeth. A sealant is a protective coating applied to the chewing surface of back teeth, sealing off grooves that tend to collect food and protecting tooth enamel. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends sealants for all school-age children.

Your children should start flossing as soon as possible. Flossing is the most effective way to remove food and plaque from between teeth. Encourage them to floss at least once or twice a day for the best cavity protection. Flossing is particularly important for children between the teeth in the back of their mouths, as children tend not to brush as well in those areas as they do in the front.

Lowering your children's intake of snacks and beverages that contain sugar also can help prevent tooth decay. Sugar is linked to tooth decay because if sugar is not cleaned off teeth well, bacteria in your mouth feed on it, producing acids. In time, acid wears away the teeth's hard outer layer of enamel and the process of decay begins. Drinks with high sugar content, such as fortified fruit juices and carbonated beverages, can trigger tooth decay, especially when sipped throughout the day.

Finally, take your children to see a dentist on a regular basis. Most children need dental checkups twice a year, although some may require them more often. Try to choose one dentist and stay with him or her as your children grow. Having a dentist who knows your children's dental history and is familiar with any special needs they have can make it easier to prevent and catch problems quickly. - Thomas Salinas, D.D.S., Dental Specialties, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

How to spot and prevent deep vein thrombosis: When the clot thickens

by NIH News in Health

Lots of things can cause pain and swelling in your leg. But if your symptoms stem from a blood clot deep in your leg, it can be dangerous. Blood clots can happen to anyone, anytime. But some people are at increased risk. Taking steps to reduce your chances of a blood clot forming in your veins can help you avoid potentially serious problems.

Blood clots can arise anywhere in your body. They develop when blood thickens and clumps together. When a clot forms in a vein deep in the body, it's called deep vein thrombosis. Deep vein blood clots typically occur in the lower leg or thigh.

"Deep vein thrombosis has classic symptoms—for example swelling, pain, warmth, and redness on the leg," says Dr. Andrei Kindzelski, an NIH blood disease expert.

"But about 30–40% of cases go

Clues of a Clot

Seek treatment if you have these symptoms. They may signal a deep vein clot or pulmonary embolism:

- swelling of the leg or along a vein in the leg
- pain or tenderness in the leg, which you may feel only when standing or walking
- increased warmth in the area of the leg that's swollen or painful
- red or discolored skin on the leg
- unexplained shortness of breath
- pain with deep breathing
- coughing up blood

unnoticed, since they don't have typical symptoms." In fact, some people don't realize they have a deep vein clot until it causes a more serious condition.

Deep vein clots—especially those in the thigh—can break off and travel through the bloodstream. If a clot lodges in an artery in the lungs, it can block blood flow and lead to a sometimes-fatal condition called pulmonary embolism. This disorder can damage the lungs and reduce blood oxygen levels, which can harm other organs as well.

Some people are more at risk for deep vein thrombosis than others. "Usually people who develop deep vein thrombosis have some level of thrombophilia, which means their blood clots more rapidly or easily," Kindzelski says. Getting a blood clot is usually the first sign of this condition because it's hard to notice otherwise. In these cases, lifestyle can contribute to a blood clot forming—if you don't move enough, for example. Your risk is higher if you've recently had surgery or broken a bone, if you're ill and in bed for a long time, or if you're traveling for a long time (such as during long car or airplane rides).

Having other diseases or conditions can also raise your chances of a blood clot. These include a stroke, paralysis (an inability to move), chronic heart disease, high blood pressure, surgical procedure, or having been recently treated for cancer.

Women who take hormone therapy pills or birth control pills, are pregnant, or within the first 6 weeks after giving birth are also at higher risk. So are those who smoke or who are older than 60. But deep vein thrombosis can happen at any age.

You can take simple steps to lower your chances for a blood clot. Exercise your lower leg muscles if you're sitting for a long time while traveling. Get out of bed and move around as soon as you're able after having surgery or being ill.

The more active you are, the better your chance of avoiding a blood clot. Take any medicines your doctor prescribes to prevent clots after some types of surgery.

A prompt diagnosis and proper treatment can help prevent the complications of blood clots. See your doctor immediately if you have any signs or symptoms of deep vein thrombosis or pulmonary embolism (see the Wise Choices box). A physical exam and other tests can help doctors determine whether you've got a blood clot.

There are many ways to treat deep vein thrombosis. Therapies aim to stop the blood clot from getting bigger, prevent the clot from breaking off and moving to your lungs, or reduce your chance of having another blood clot. NIH scientists continue to research new medicines and better treatment options.

If you think you may be at risk for deep vein thrombosis, talk with your doctor.

to set her arm without it..." I said, my voice cracking with fear.

Another hour later, I called a third time.

"Honey, I don't know where you are, but the doctor set Anna's arm. She's better now, but it was really scary. The asked me to leave the room, but I stayed with Anna. They made me sit in a chair because some parents faint. When they pulled on her broken arm, I held her face in front of mine and she screamed like I've never heard before. But it worked, and now she's in a splint. Please call."

By the time Francis called the next day, Anna had the first of three casts she would wear during her childhood. This one was purple.

Over the years, our three children wracked up the typical childhood injuries, stitches, colds, and flu. In fact, in the last month, Lilly sprained her knee snowboarding, then sprained her ankle and got a concussion while sledding.

As a military spouse and mom, I learned that, I was much stronger than I ever knew. When forced to manage crises alone, something primal kicked in. A strong, calm, nurturing, unshakable force I didn't know I had deep within me, waiting to be tapped.

If I could, I'd add an addendum to Murphy's Military Spouse Clause that says, "Don't worry, you've got this."

NAVSUP FLC San Diego conducts first fuel delivery at new fuel pier

by Candice Villarreal
SAN DIEGO - NAVSUP Fleet Logistics Center (FLC) San Diego conducted the first fuel delivery utilizing its new Defense Fuel Support Point (DFSP) Point Loma fuel pier as it topped off Military Sealift Command fleet replenishment oiler USNS Henry J. Kaiser (T-AO 187) Feb. 10 in San Diego.

The fueling marks the near-completion of Military Construction Project (MILCON) P-1306, an $84 million renovation awarded in 2013 as part of a series of fuel facilities upgrades aimed at extending facility life expectancy, reducing operating costs, providing increased storage capability, and improving overall safety.

"Fuels play an integral role in our overall warfighter readiness," said Commanding Officer Capt. Michelle Morse. "The old pier provided more than a century of service, and we are pleased that this new, more technologically advanced pier will keep our Navy and allied forces well equipped to perform their tasks and missions - whether for training or emergent contingencies - well beyond the next generation of warfighters."

The NAVSUP FLC San Diego DFSP fuels team is charged with providing petroleum, oil, and lubricant logistics support to 86 homeported ships, submarines, and transient vessels.

It is the cornerstone for providing tactical fuel support to Navy command units operating in the southern California operations area, supporting the largest concentration of naval forces in the world.

With 17 fueling stations, the new pier is equipped to issue JP-5 jet fuel, diesel fuel (marine), and lubricating oils, while also having the capability to offload contaminated petroleum products. Military Sealift Command-contracted fuel tanker MT Empire State (T-AOT 5193) was the first customer to offload such products at the pier Feb. 2.

"The new pier is a shining example of mission accomplishment through successful partnerships and team effort," said Southwest Regional Fuels Officer Lt. Cmdr. Brian Madden.

"Successfully fueling this ship at our new facility is a direct result of a dedicated Navy and contractor team that balanced safety, quality, and production while ensuring all fuel distribution requirements were met through every phase of construction."

The new, double-decker fuel pier is the first of its kind; developed with evolving environmental and seismic standards in mind and boasting a 75-year minimum service life design.

"When you are in the business of providing 400 million gallons of fuels per year at a rate of 300,000 gallons per hour, it is absolutely critical to have the most advanced equipment and facilities available," said Morse. "The Navy and its customers are going to benefit from even safer, more environmentally-conscious fueling evolutions moving forward."

An official ribbon cutting ceremony will be held following the next phase of project completion milestones. Total completion of MILCON P-1306 is slated for early 2018.

NAVSUP FLC San Diego, one of eight fleet logistics centers under NAVSUP Global Logistics Support (GLS), provides operational logistics, business and support services to fleet, shore, and industrial commands of the Navy, Coast Guard, Military Sealift Command, and other joint and allied forces.

Services include contracting, regional transportation, fuel, material management, household goods movement support, postal and consolidated mail, warehousing, global logistics and husbanding, hazardous material management, and integrated logistics support.

NAVSUP GLS provides global logistics for a global Navy. The organization is made up of more than 6,300 military and civilian logistics professionals operating from 105 locations worldwide, providing an extensive array of integrated global logistics and contracting services to Navy, Marine Corps, joint operational units, and allied forces across all warfare enterprises.

and controllers. I hope that by explaining what we do and why we do it, the community understands that we have an obligation to the Navy and that mission has to be our top priority."

Base officials want to be good neighbors and continue to work with the cities' leadership. They listen to residents' concerns regarding the issues associated with military training that may be disruptive to the community.

Local winner for training excellence

by Enid Wilson
PENSACOLA, Fla. - Training Support Center San Diego received accolades as Commander, Naval Education and Training Command (NETC) announced the winners of the 2016 Training Excellence Awards (TEA) Feb. 9, honoring superior accomplishment in supporting NETC's mission.

These annual awards recognize training commands which demonstrate the highest standards of excellence in meeting established requirements for training.

TSC San Diego received five Functional Awards in the Training Support Center category. Those were for Planning and Programming (Silver "TS"); Total Force Management (Red "TS"); Logistics Management (Blue "TS"); Training Support Management (Bronze "TS"); and Financial Management (Purple "TS").

"Every year we re-evaluate our metrics and raise our standards, and every year the team continues to meet and deliver high-quality training to the fleet," said Rear Adm. Mike White, NETC commander. "The recipients of TEA symbolize the high-quality and dedicated staff and instructors we have throughout the NETC domain."

The highest TEA awards for 2016, the NETC Training Excellence (White "T") is awarded to the Center for Information Warfare Training in Pensacola, Florida, and the NETC 2016 Training Support Excellence (White "TS") is awarded to Training Support Center San Diego. Both commands are authorized to display the blue burgee throughout the 2017 calendar year to indicate their outstanding accomplishments and excellence in delivery of education and training.

At the end of the year, each NETC training headquarters directorate assesses learning centers and training support centers based on functional areas including: Business Administration and Support; Planning and Programming; Total Force Management; Logistics Management; Information Technology Management; Curriculum Management; Training Production Management; Training Support Management; and Financial Management.

"The metrics used in TEA deal with every aspect of a training center's mission, and the criteria has been adjusted as training evolves," said Dorothy Berry, NETC's TEA board coordinator. "The TEA serves as a measurable way for commands to assess their overall effectiveness, and ultimately their quality output to the fleet."

In addition to competing for the overall "T" and "TS" awards, each learning center and training support center has an opportunity to receive functional awards in the nine functional areas. A TEA certificate is presented to commands scoring 90 percent in the functional area.

VAW-113 holds change of command ceremony

PACIFIC OCEAN - The "Black Eagles" of Carrier Airborne Early Warning Squadron 113 held a change of command ceremony above aircraft carrier USS Carl Vinson Feb. 9.

Cmdr. Aaron Rybar relieved Cmdr. Benjamin Duelley during a mid-air ceremony taking place over the Pacific Ocean in two E-2C Hawkeye aircraft during their Western Pacific deployment.

"There have been thousands of men and women that have served in this squadron over the decades," said Duelley. "And I am extremely proud to be part of that group."

Duelley served as commanding officer of VAW-113 from October 2015 to February 2017. Under his command, the Black Eagles completed a 2016 Southern Seas deployment aboard

USS George Washington (CVN 73) and a work-up cycle culminating in the Black Eagles receiving the "Golden Wrench" award as top maintenance department in Carrier Air Wing 2 for the 4th quarter of 2016.

"I couldn't be more proud to take command and lead 162 of the most talented aviators, maintainers and Sailors in the United States Navy," said Rybar.

America ARG conducts Group Sail

PACIFIC OCEAN - The America Amphibious Ready Group (ARG) successfully completed a multi-ship training exercise, Group Sail, Feb. 10 off the coast of southern California.

Group Sail is one of the pre-deployment underways which allow the three ARG ships, USS America (LHA 6), USS San Diego (LPD 22) and USS Pearl Harbor (LSD 52) to exercise together in a maritime environment. Components of the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit Air Combat Element are also participating in Group Sail, conducting air qualifications aboard America.

As part of the comprehensive pre-deployment training work-ups, the ships spent a week operating underway, performing highly technical evolutions in the three-ship ARG construct. Training evolutions included threat detection, air defense, and fast attack craft exercises, with additional evolution in flight quarters and replenishments-at-sea. The synthesized training and real-world evolutions allowed the ships to practice the composite warfare concept, where each ship took a leading role in monitoring, protecting, and fighting the battleship elements.

Honing and refining tactic skills are vital to the America ARG's progression through the preparation phase as the ARG readies for deployment later this year.

"Group Sail is about getting all three of the America ARG ships out to sea and flexing the composite warfare concept," said Capt. Homer Denius, commanding officer of Amphibious Squadron 3. "Pre-deployment training exercises allow us to operate in a safe, realistic environment. Once we understand how to operate the three ships together, we can then embark our Marine Corps team and train in a fully-integrated environment."

Navy logistics, USS Coronado complete voyage repair availability

by MC2 Joshua Fulton

SINGAPORE - Commander, Logistics Group Western Pacific Ship Repair Unit and crew from Independence-class littoral combat ship USS Coronado (LCS 4) completed a successful voyage repair availability period in Singapore Feb. 10.

The seven-day repair period will enable Coronado to continue its mission, conduct cooperative security engagements with regional partner nations and enhance maritime security relationships during the ship's rotational deployment to the Indo-Asia-Pacific.

"The strategic location of the COMLOG WESTPAC SRU and the importance of work that is done here cannot be understated," said Sean Jermyn, project manager for Coronado. "Our location in Singapore enables us to sustain and provide timely voyage repairs for ships operating throughout this region."

The COMLOG WESTPAC SRU facilitated maintenance on Coronado's main propulsion systems, the ship's lift platform, radars, and the ship's communication systems.

Additionally, repairs and preventative maintenance checks were performed on the ship's Collection Holding Transfer (CHT) tank, which required the deactivation of all ship's bathroom, shower and galley facilities for a five-day period. The repairs were accomplished while allowing Coronado's crew to utilize local facilities as a substitute for the affected services due to the proximity of the ship's berthing at the Sembawang Wharf.

The synchronization between Coronado's crew and the SRU was crucial to the success of the voyage repair availability, enhancing the Navy's ability to implement agile and adaptive logistical support throughout the Indo-Asia-Pacific.

"The ability to operate forward in the region is negated if we don't have the ability to perform maintenance repairs," said Terrence Burns, marine surveyor for Coronado. "Without these capabilities, ships would have to go all the way to Yokosuka or Guam to receive necessary repairs, meaning the ships would have to choose between executing their mission in a limited capacity or leaving the area for an extended time frame."

Located in Singapore since 1992, COMLOG WESTPAC is 7th Fleet's provider of combat-ready logistics, operating government-owned and contracted ships to keep units throughout 7th Fleet armed, fueled, and fed.

UB40, featuring legendary founders Ali Campbell, Astro and Mickey Virtue with special guests Matisyahu and Raging Fyah will return to the Starlight Theater stage as part of the band's U.S. Summer Tour at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, July 27, at Pala Casino Spa & Resort. UB40's performance last August at Pala was a sellout.

UB40's new two-CD package, "Unplugged + Greatest Hits" was released in late November on UMC and already has gone Silver in the U.K. "Unplugged" offers an inventive new spin on UB40's early gems plus the huge hits with which they later wooed the world. Among the highlights on the album is a new version of "I Got You Babe," featuring Ali's 22-year-old daughter, Kaya Campbell, who sings the lyrics originally performed by Chrissie Hynde when the track topped the UK charts in 1985.

That pop standard is one of four number-one singles on "Unplugged", which also contains new takes of "(I Can't Help) Falling In Love With You," "Red, Red Wine" – complete with a fresh Astro talk-over in an acoustic style – and a new version of "Baby Come Back" featuring Pato Banton, the Birmingham reggae star who took the song to the top of the charts with UB40 in 1994.

Since reuniting three years ago, lead vocalist Campbell, Astro and Mickey have developed into a formidable touring outfit with an 11-piece touring ensemble, complete with a three-piece horn section.

Formed in 1979, UB40 helped define reggae music for a generation, transforming its working class roots into a global clarion call. The pioneering reggae troupe topped the UK singles chart on three occasions, earned multiple Grammy nominations and sold 70 million records worldwide as it took its smooth, yet rootsy, musical blend to all corners of the globe.

UB40 featuring Ali Campbell, Astro, Mickey Virtue With Special Guests Matisyahu, Raging Fyah 7:30 P.M., Thur., July 27.

Omarr's weekly Astrological forecast

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you had a nickel for every step you took you would be rich. In the week to come your active lifestyle could put you at the head of the class. Money making activities might be at the top of your to-do list.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The hardest steel is created by the hottest fire. In the week to come your energy levels may be higher than usual so you can get an incredible amount accomplished. You can be as tough as nails when occasions call for strength.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Watch and learn. Someone close may set a sterling example of cautious planning. Don't be fooled into thinking you can achieve something without hard work this week. You can attain your dreams by paying attention.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A partner may keep you in line in the week to come. Charming new friends could put pressure on you to do more than your fair share. Someone may fire up your enthusiasm so much that you forget to put on the brakes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Put your dreams to the test this week. If a little experience is useful then just imagine how far you can go with a lot of experience. You may be surprised to find that you have a creative talent if you try something new.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What you see isn't always what you get. You may be disappointed if you follow through on a family member's idea in the week to come. However, if you work hard and study you can accomplish a great deal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stay on an even keel. Find a life preserver just in case you go overboard this week. In your enthusiasm to keep up with new acquaintances or to try something new you may spend more money than you should.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some competition makes you complete. Your energies should be funneled into areas where you can show off imagination and vision. For the best success stick to conservative financial strategies as this week unfolds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The more you have the more you want. This week you can enjoy what you have and avoid obsessing about what you don't have. Protect your nest egg by avoiding unnecessary speculations or tweaking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Fire on all cylinders. Work hard to make all your dreams come true this week. If the bills get paid there is plenty of time left to partake of the joys of life. Don't let ambitions blind you to things of real value.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Balance between caution and exuberance in the week ahead. The thrill derived from gambling might outweigh common sense. You should restrain yourself from too quickly becoming involved in a relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Perform a reality check. "Don't look a gift horse in the mouth" may not mean much to the jet set. Accept anything that given freely in the week ahead but be cautious about investments and major purchases.

USO San Diego and the Marine Corps Trials

The Marine Corps Trials will take place 7-15 March 2017 at Camp Pendleton.

The Warrior Athlete Reconditioning Program (WAR-P) provides opportunities for wounded, ill, and injured Marines to engage in both physical and cognitive activities outside the traditional therapy setting.

Around 325 athletes will compete, vying for a spot in the 2017 Warrior Games. We are expecting between 7-14 International Teams who will be returning to the Trials this year. This year's trials will include 100 Marine athletes from the west coast, 100 Marines from the east coast, 25 veterans, and 100 international athletes from the following countries:

Australia Canada, Columbia, France, Georgia, Germany, Italy, Mexico, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Spain, and The United Kingdom.

The Trials will facilitate the emotional and physical rehabilitation of these 325 wounded, ill and injured service members as they train and compete in eight Paralympic events. Sports include archery, cycling, track and field, shooting, swimming, sitting volleyball and wheelchair basketball.

Competitors include active-duty Marines and Sailors, medically retired combat veterans and healing heroes from the ten to fourteen Allied Nations. The American will be competing for 40 coveted positions in the 2017 National Warrior Games

For the seventh consecutive year, USO San Diego has been asked to serve as the lead non-profit organization supporting this significant event. The USO Neil Ash Airport Center will serve as the rallying point for most of these athletes. It will host a free meal, beverages, computers and a place to relax.

USO San Diego will provide the Opening Dinner for approximately 450 athletes, coaches, sponsors and support staff. We will also provide The Great American Experience; a day of sightseeing with lunch to welcome our foreign competitors.

More than 125 volunteers will support the MCTs. These Marine Corps Trials foster resolve in a team setting and is an integral part of their recovery from wounds, amputations and other traumatic injuries. We hope you will be able to come out to some of the events.

AutoMatters & More: IOM R/C Sailboat Racing; Sherlock Holmes & Art in Motion at The Fleet

AutoMatters™ & More

by Jan Wagner

"2017 San Diego Argonauts Mid-Winter Regatta"

In February, under the auspices of the San Diego Argonauts Model Yacht Club, 34 competitors raced IOM (International One Metre) scale model radio-controlled (R/C) sailing yachts at the Mission Bay Model Yacht Pond. One Metre refers to the hull length. The skippers came to race from across the United States.

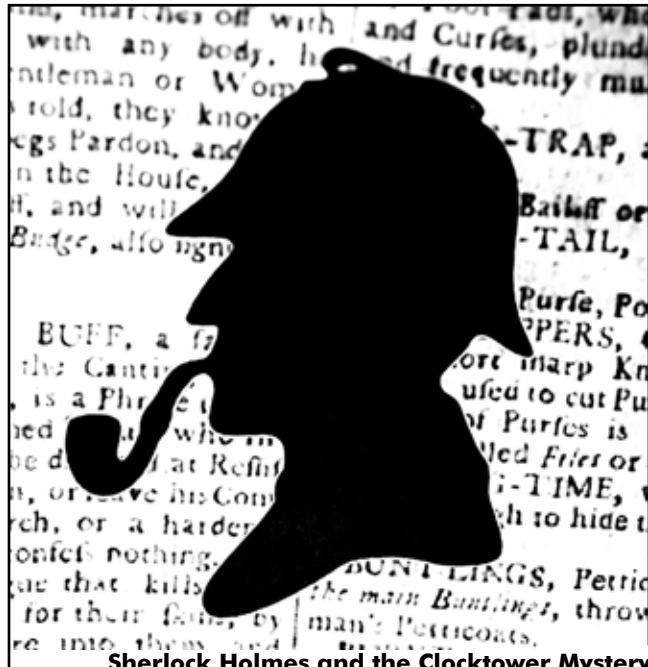

There are very detailed, specific rules governing IOM scale model R/C sailing yachts. As is explained in the One Metre section of the International Radio Sailing Association (IRSA) website at <https://www.radiosailing.org/classes/one-metre>, the IOM is the most popular R/C racing yacht in the world and is raced small size of the sailing yachts, and their variable distances from their skippers walking along the shore, vision plays a significant role too – especially when the yachts are in close proximity to each other as they negotiate the course. Blocking and contact – inadvertent as they may well be – is promptly called out and protests are lodged.

The yachts must sail around Ebey (sailing #193: "britPOP!") was declared the overall victor, although only by a single point over his nearest competitor, Mark Gollison (sailing #55: "V9"). This is a very competitive sport. For Bob Wells' race report, including complete results from this regatta, go to <http://www.iomusa.org/wp-content/uploads/2016/07/2017-Midwinter-report.pdf>.

"Sherlock Holmes and the Clocktower Mystery"

The staff of The Fleet Science Center in San Diego's Balboa Park never seem to run out of great ideas for new exhibits. This time they have devised not one but two of them. "Sherlock Holmes and the Clocktower Mystery," open through June 4, 2017, is an ingenious 'Who done it?' murder mystery. Accept the challenge and as an amateur sleuth you will investigate the scene of the murder, experiencing the sights, sounds and smells of Victorian London. You will follow in the path of Dr. Watson, making observations, gathering clues and using your deductive reasoning to try to solve the baffling crime. To help you, pick up a "Visitor Guide to Solving the Crime." It contains tips, as well as spaces organized by chapter for you to make notes. Whether or not you are successful at solving the crime, all will be made clear to you in the study at the end.

"So Moved: The Art and Science of Motion"

This exhibit at The Fleet explores motion and movement through interactive science exhibits and 15 works of art presented by contemporary San Diego artists. Types of motion considered include rotational and circular, back-and-forth, wave, random and the illusion of motion. As an example, in the "Autonomous Mass Assembly," small magnetic spheres that have been cut into pieces reassemble themselves back into those spheres as they are aggressively shaken in a machine, through "the random motion of molecules – called Brownian motion, which is a function of temperature, or kinetic energy." Experience this and much more through June 11th.

in over 30 countries.

R/C sailing yachts tack back and forth along the racecourse, propelled by the ever-changing wind – a significant variable out of the skippers' control. Over the course of the weekend many races (14) were run, in an effort to produce fair and equitable overall results. Points were awarded based upon finishing positions in each race. They were added together for each skipper, and then the worst two race scores were thrown out. The lower the total score, the better.

Since the Mission Bay Model Yacht Pond is relatively narrow, the fleet was divided in two and the races were run in pairs of heats.

There is a great deal of skill involved, including designing, building and fine-tuning the R/C sailing yachts; strategy, reading the wind and controlling the sails. Considering the relatively the floating white markers, which is easier said than done in the congestion and shifting winds.

The relative familiarity of the California skippers with the wind and the pond seemed to provide a home court advantage. At the awards ceremony John Association serves to "promote the design, construction and racing of IOM sailboats and manage measurement, registration, ranking and regattas for IOM sailing yachts throughout the United States." Yachts are available both in kit form and ready to sail. Several used boats were advertised for sale on

PET of the week

Looking for a date for Valentine's Day? Ginger is your gal! Ginger is an eight years young spayed Chihuahua/Dachshund mix who weighs 12 lbs. Well behaved, portable, and always smiling, this happy girl will gladly accompany you on all of your journeys. Meet Ginger by asking for ID#A1421862 Tag#C419. She can be adopted for the Senior Fee of just $35, which is waived for Seniors looking to adopt senior pets.

Phantom is an eleven years young neutered black/white cat who weighs 9.7 lbs. This handsome guy arrived to the shelter as a stray and needs a compassionate home to care for him in his golden years. He's a low-maintenance companion who would love to keep you company while you binge watch all of your favorite shows - as long as you can multi-task and also give him lots of scratches! Meet Phantom by asking for ID#A1759996 Tag#C159. He can be adopted for the Senior Fee of $35.

You can visit these animals and their many other friends at our Central County Shelter, 5480 Gaines Street, San Diego between the hours of 9:30AM to 5:30PM, Tuesday through Saturday. Visit <http://www.sddac.com> for more information and contact the shelter with questions and for holiday hours.

Picking the right collar for your dog

Q: Our lab/pit mix puppy is now 8 months old and we got a metal choke collars to stop her from pulling when we walk her. However even with it on she will pull ahead of us until she actually starts to choke and cough and yet she never seems to get the idea. How is this supposed to work? Does it not bother her when it gets so tight around her neck? - Brad Williams, Macon, GA

A: A choke collar actually should be called a training collar. The objective with it is not to choke the dog but to get its attention when they start to pull away. It needs to be put on the dog so that when you give it a yank it tightens up and then quickly releases. You do not want it to tighten around the neck.

Personally, one should only use these collars when they have the time, the patience and the knowledge to use them properly.

I think a better solution for your dog is a gentle leader or head halter. These collars go around the face as a halter and the leash is attached to a ring under the dog's jaw. If the halter is fitted correctly then when the dog pulls ahead the lead turns him or her around so that the dog is now facing you.

Be sure to get the type of gentle leader that attached to the dog's collar. Some dogs have been able to get the leaders off themselves. It also helps if you first practice with the gentle leader on the dog indoors until you and the dog are comfortable.

The only problem that I have seen with the gentle leader is it resembles a muzzle to some people, so you may get some funny looks as you walk the dog but your shoulders will be thanking you.

Q: My bunny and guinea pig seem to shed constantly. In the past I have seen that you advised giving flax seed oil to dogs and cats to cut down on shedding. Does this work on bunnies and guinea pigs as well? - Jennifer Castro, Allentown, PA

A: I actually have tried this on my own small mammal pets - I sprayed the oil on their salad greens to see if it makes a difference. However, when I sprayed the flaxseed oil on the greens the bunnies and guinea pigs would either eat around the oil or not touch the greens at all.

Thus far it seems that the only thing I can do to make a difference is to comb and brush them every single day. If any other readers out there have found another solution to the shedding issue of bunnies and guinea pigs, I would be happy to hear from you.
